President about to sign the satisfactory Army Appropriations bill. Withdrawal by Senator King of his objection to the Sheppard promotion bill means its passage. Senate Naval Committee reporting or pressing consideration naval bills passed by the House.

To promotion list officers of the Army: I am writing to Mr. McSwain telling him of the effects of his bill on my standing. I suggest you do likewise. It is the proper thing to do.

Navy appropriation bill to be reported next week by the House Appropriations Committee. The bill is eminently satisfactory to the Department. 'Nuff said.

"To perpetuate the valor and traditions of the United States Army" is the way Governor Hoffman, of New Jersey, expresses the purpose of Army Day. All Commanding Generals of Corps Areas are cooperating with the State authorities to make the day a huge success. As it will be.

President plans to build a ship memorial basin in connection with the Washington, D. C. park system as a home for the Constellation, Olympia and other historic vessels. An excellent idea, Mr. President.

Lt. Col. Irving J. Philipson, on duty with the Budget and Legislative Planning Section of the General Staff, was greeted on his birthday this week with a beautiful basket of flowers presented by his associates. A gracious thought and recognition of what Colonel Philipson and his co-workers have done under General MacArthur for the Army.

A ripe old age has not dimmed Rear Admiral Purnell Frederick Harrington's powerful support of National Defense. This 91 year old retired officer reiterated this week his emphatic belief in preparedness. I am sure, Admiral, what you said from the depths of your experience will largely influence those who read your statement.

Colonel Follett Bradley, Intelligence officer, GHQ Air Force, forcefully told the Washington Rotary Club that the Army Air Corps needs a minimum of 2,320 airplanes, of which 980 are required for the GHQ establishment. Perhaps in the light of this considered opinion, Congress will remove the ban on the purchase of military supplies now in the work relief bill. Certainly it should do so.

Succeeding Capt. Halford R. Greenlee, who becomes manager of the Portsmouth Navy Yard, Capt. Hollis M. Cooley will assume charge next month of the Naval Research Laboratory, which is rendering service of incalculable value to the Navy. It is a grand assignment, Captain Cooley.

Navy Sanctions Changes In Line Personnel Bill

Amendment of the Navy line personnel bill to permit naval officers to count enlisted and warrant service for retirement pay purposes has been endorsed by the Navy Department.

Following a brief hearing held by the Senate Naval Affairs Committee April 2, the Navy Department wrote to Senator Park Trammell, chairman of the body, declaring that they would be favorably disposed to amending the Line bill, to permit non-Naval Academy graduates commissioned since June 30, 1922, to count their previous enlisted and warrant service for retirement. Under existing law, only officers commissioned prior to that date may count such service.

No action has as yet been taken by the Senate Committee on the measure, but a favorable report is expected within a few days. In addition to the change mentioned above, the bill may be reported to the Senate altered in one or two other particulars over the way in which it was passed by the House. In the letter sent to the Committee by the Department, the Navy's views are presented on the provision now in the bill forcing lieutenants who have more than 14 years' commissioned service to retire if 45 years old or older. While the text of the letter has not been made public, Department officials state that a somewhat neutral stand is taken. The letter, it was said, declares that while lieutenants over the age of 45 are generally too old for the duties of their rank, the department will be agreeable with whatever action is taken on the point by Congress.

The Senate Committee may also approve the provision repealing the blanket ban on retired officers being employed by firms doing business with the Government. As recommended by the Navy Department, the bill would only prohibit retired officers from acting as sales agents for firms selling to the Navy Department. The existing law is so broadly construed as to prevent retired officers from almost all kinds of civilian employment. The House Naval Committee, however, cut this provision out of the bill.

Another change which has been suggested is one which would permit lieutenants, and lieutenants, junior grade, to retire voluntarily on graded retired pay, after they had completed 14 and 7 years' commissioned service, respectively, and had been made extra numbers in grade.

Rear Adm. W. D. Leahy, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, explained the Navy Line Personnel bill to the Senate Naval Committee at its Tuesday meeting. His testimony was rather in line with what he stated before the House Naval Affairs Committee some weeks ago. He said the bill did not provide for any increases in officers now employed on shore, except for necessary aviators on shore. This aviation force ashore for the program of 1,910 planes should be increased by 291 aviators. The number of officers now ashore, he

Army Increase and Allowances

The Army appropriation bill, with its provisions for stabilizing rental and subsistence allowances at the pre-economy rate and for increasing the Regular Army to 165,000 enlisted men, awaits only the signature of President Roosevelt to become law. The Senate approved the bill exactly as finally adopted by the House March 29 and described in last week's ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

Consider Bill Assuring Credit For Longevity

The Senate Naval Affairs Committee on Tuesday took up the bill introduced by Senator Trammell to restore full longevity pay to the uniformed services next July 1.

Rear Adm. Claude C. Bloch, Judge Advocate General of the Navy, made a statement in favor of the legislation.

Admiral Bloch said that "by reason of an interpretation which has been placed on the economy laws, younger officers will not be able to count the years of service between June 30, 1932, and June 30, 1935, and so all those younger officers and warrant officers of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Public Health Service and Coast Guard will lose credit for 3 years actual service which they have performed for the Government." He continued that it "involves no back pay, has nothing to do with anything that has taken place in the past, but it merely gives them credit for the service which they actually performed."

"During the fiscal years, 1933, 1934 and 1935," Admiral Bloch stated, "the Economy Laws have been in effect which have reduced the pay of all personnel of the five services coming under the Pay Readjustment Act of 1922."

"I will not go into the reductions which have been made, for I am sure that all the members of this Committee are quite familiar with them."

"On July 1, 1935, the fiscal year of 1936 begins and all economy laws lapse and the pay and promotion of the personnel of the Navy should return to its normal condition as it existed on the first of July, 1932. The object of this bill, S. 2287, is to permit officers to receive the same pay that they would have received had there never been any economy laws enacted; no back pay or compensation will be due by reason of the enactment of this bill. All features for a return to normalcy have been covered except one feature, namely, that part of the law which gives an officer a five per cent increase of his base pay for each three years' service, not exceeding thirty years' or 50 per cent."

"Because of the interpretations based on the wording of the economy laws by the Comptroller General, not only were these increases suspended during the operation of the economy laws (1933, 1934 and 1935), but also a further ruling has been made that the service rendered during those years cannot be credited after June 30, 1935, even though the economy laws are no longer in effect. In other words, although an officer may

Senate May Pass Army Bill; Revision Opposed

Early passage of the War Department promotion bill is now expected in the Senate. Senator King, of Utah, whose objections have prevented consideration each time the bill has been called from the Senate calendar, says that he will make no further objection and that he does not intend to speak against it.

Meanwhile the House Military Affairs Committee, which is planning to take up the problem of Army promotion shortly, received from the War Department a letter vigorously opposing the enactment of the McSwain bill to revise the promotion list. This bill, Chairman McSwain has let it be known, will be considered by his committee in connection with the War Department's promotion bill. Accompanying the War Department report was an "experimental promotion list" compiled by the Department showing how the present officers of the hump would be rearranged if the McSwain bill passed. This list is printed in this issue of the JOURNAL beginning on page 661.

"After considerable study of the bill," Senator King told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, "I believe it corrects inequalities and to that extent will be of benefit to the Army service."

Senator Sheppard, of Texas, chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, talked at some length with Senator King in explanation of what the proposed legislation should accomplish. "As far as I am aware," said Senator Sheppard, "there is now no serious obstacle to adoption of this bill in the Senate. It is the third bill on the Calendar. I look to being able to call it up again very soon."

Disposal by the House of the McSwain bill to take profits out of war, which has occupied Committee attention much of the time for several weeks, may clear the way for the extensive Committee hearings, which Chairman McSwain has announced he plans to hold.

The report opposing revision of the promotion list, signed by Acting Secretary of War Woodring, while voicing disfavor of the revision bill pointed out that the War Department promotion bill is designed to aid promotion of every officer below the grade of colonel without resorting to controversial issues which in the past have defeated attempts to relieve promotion stagnation.

The War Department report, after a detailed history of the composition of the promotion list and the efforts made to revise it, continues:

"From the foregoing it will be seen that every agency charged, up to this time, with studying the promotion list found that although injustices exist in certain cases in said list, any attempt to alter the list will result in creating new injustices."

"In 1928 a bill, similar in practically every respect to H.R. 6675, was introduced into Congress and extensive hearings were held thereon by the House Committee on Military Affairs. The bill failed of enactment, and the Congress has never seen fit to enact any legislation changing the law in the matter."

Press of Nation Comments on Questions of Interest to Service Personnel

Matters of interest to the personnel of the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps have been the subject of editorial comment in leading newspapers of late.

The Newport, R. I. News comments as follows on a recent article by the Secretary of War.

"Armies do not start wars, and lack of preparation to meet the attack of a possible enemy invites attack, according to George H. Dern, Secretary of War, who writes an informative article on preparedness in the current number of the National Republic. He says, among other things: 'You do not need to be reminded that our country was born in war and that therefore the results of war are not always wholly bad.'"

"Armies, Mr. Dern points out, never have had any political influence in this country. Our regular army always has been small."

"We need a good defensive force, now, he declared, because the world is unsettled and there is so much clear evidence that some nations still believe might makes right. Every American should bear these things in mind."

"Even if we should build our army up to the limits asked by military experts now, it still would be the smallest army maintained by any first class power. It will take several years to make our navy equal to Great Britain's. Those that say this is a militaristic country are making themselves absurd."

Under the caption "Japan's Quest For Oil" the Baltimore Sun declares:

"The Japanese well realize the part oil plays in modern warfare. Indeed, they probably place more emphasis on petroleum than do most other nations, for they are a maritime power and rely for their defense upon a navy to which an assured supply of oil is indispensable. Hence they have for years been searching the Far East for dependable supplies. Their search, however, has not been without its difficulties."

"For the last several years the Japanese Navy has drawn its oil mainly from the fields in the Russian half of Saghalien island. These fields have been operated by a Japanese company under a concession from the Soviet Union. The concession expires next year and the Japanese, pleased with their success in buying the Chinese Eastern Railway from the Soviet Union, are now hoping to induce the Russians to sell their half of Saghalien before the end of the concession period. The Soviet Union rejected such an offer in 1923 and there is no reason to believe that its policy has changed in the meantime. True, the Saghalien fields mean relatively little to the Russians, for they have vast deposits of oil in Baku and elsewhere. Nevertheless, to cede this territory to Japan would not only bring the Japanese closer to Vladivostok but would give them positive control of an important war material.

"It would appear that the sale of the northern half of Saghalien will turn upon the question of whether the Soviet Union is willing to go that far in arming a potential enemy."

The following letter to the editor signed "W. C. R. Major General, USA-Ret." was published in the New York Times recently.

"Representative Randolph Carpenter of Kansas is reported by the Congressional Record as having stated in the House: 'Now I have no quarrel with West Point, I think it is a great institution. * * * But the fact remains, nevertheless, that it was the civilians that did the actual fighting to win the war.' And that of the battle deaths, 98.5 per cent were of civilian emergency officers and 1.5 per cent of West Point men."

"Representative Carpenter apparently thought that there were equal numbers of officers from civilian life and from West Point. Of the 200,000 army officers in the war, the total number from West Point was 3,445—less than 2 per cent. The percentage of battle deaths among the graduates of the United States Military Academy, in every grade from colonel to lieutenant inclusive, was greater than among the civilian emergency officers or among the regular army officers not graduates of West Point. The percentage of battle deaths among West Point men from the rank of lieutenant up to including that of major was greater than that among the soldiers in the ranks. At present about 40 per cent of the officers of the army are West Point graduates."

Credit For Longevity

have served three years during this period, these three years are considered as though he had not been in the Service.

"This being the case, that service rendered during these three years cannot be credited, all the personnel affected will, in addition to the reductions caused by the economy legislation continue to suffer a reduction of five per cent (three years).

"The annual enactment of economy legislation indicated that Congress intended it to be temporary and not permanent, however, the construction placed on the effect of the laws by the General Accounting Office makes it permanent, if the three years' service cannot be credited.

"The President on page XIII of the Budget of the United States Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1936, states:

"* * * Specific provision is also made for service credits to certain personnel affected by the suspension of increases in pay during the fiscal years 1933 to 1935, in the determination of compensation accruing subsequent to June 30, 1935, but without authorizing the payment of the amount that would have been paid during these years."

"S. 2287 is identical with the section in the Appendix attached to the President's message so there is no additional cost involved.

"The Navy Department recommends the enactment of S. 2287 because it will prevent undue hardship and distress, particularly among the younger officers. There is inclosed a statement which shows the history of the legislation concerned."

Army Day Message

The following statement of General Douglas MacArthur, Chief of Staff, U. S. Army, concerning Army Day, was made public today:

"Very naturally the Army is delighted to know that the public is participating so widely and so enthusiastically in the celebration of Army Day. Particularly the Army is happy to note a distinct effort to insure, through the public press and otherwise, a universal understanding of the true significance of the day."

"April 6th came first by its designation of Army Day through its selection by patriotic societies as a significant date on which annually to focus popular attention upon the essentials of our nation's security problem. Since then the day has come also to be officially and popularly recognized as the Army's anniversary date."

"The Army feels therefore that it takes part in the day's exercises in the capacity of guest. Justifiably proud of its position as a possession and trusted servant of our Government and our people, the Army looks upon the day as one on which the public should be offered special opportunity to inspect, examine and become more closely acquainted with its soldiers, both professional and civilian. To this end it ceases for the day its customary routine of duties and places itself both locally and nationally at the complete disposal of the American citizenry."

"For the Army itself the day is one of self-rededication to the Service of the country it is sworn to defend."

Veterinary Examination

An examination of applicants for appointment as second lieutenants, Veterinary Corps, Regular Army, under the provisions of AR 605-20, will be held within the continental limits of the United States from July 8 to July 13, 1935, inclusive.

Applications and requests for information concerning this examination should be addressed to The Adjutant General. Applications received after June 25, 1935, will not be considered.

Saluting Ammunition

Blank ammunition containing a reduced charge (6 ozs.) of sodium nitrate black powder has been developed by the Ordnance Department of the Army for the 3" W.I. Saluting Gun and 3" Field Gun, to eliminate objections to the noise produced by the standard 1-lb. charge. These reduced charge rounds are intended for use in place of the 1-lb. charges, except for salutes of international courtesy.

Voluminous Data On Army Promotion Furnished President

President Roosevelt had before him voluminous documents and studies pertaining to Army promotion when he approved the MacArthur proposal now known as the War Department Promotion Bill.

In a report submitted to Representative John J. McSwain, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, at his request, the War Department has included copies of all data before the President at the time he wrote to Secretary Dern, "Your plan for a revision of the Army Promotion system appears desirable from every viewpoint." This data included copies of General MacArthur's directive to the General Council to draft a bill that could command the unified support of the Army, copies of the General Council's report and bill, copies of the dissenting comments of some members of the Council; a copy of General MacArthur's memorandum to the Secretary of War transmitting the preceding data, his criticism of it, and a revised bill, and a copy of Secretary Dern's letter to the President transmitting the entire proceedings.

Cites JOURNAL Poll

General MacArthur, in his memorandum to Secretary Dern, said: "The draft of the bill proposed by the General Council contains two controversial provisions, the adoption of which would, it is believed, be unsatisfactory to an overwhelming majority of the commissioned officers of the Army. The two provisions are:

- "a. Forced attrition.
 - "b. Promotion by selection.
- "These two subjects, especially promotion by any form of selection, in this particular instance selection out, have been matters of discussion in the Army for years. The supporters of the two principles are in a decided minority. The opponents, while conceding promotion by selection to be correct in principle, are nevertheless convinced that, in a large and scattered force, and in justice and fairness to all, it is impracticable of accomplishment in time of peace. In this connection it may be stated that when the promotion study was entrusted to the General Council, the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL conducted a poll of the commissioned personnel of the Army on various principles of promotion with the result that of several thousand officers voting in all grades from general officer to second lieutenant, furnishing thereby a good cross-section of the entire commissioned personnel, only 517, up to the latest report, favored a combination of forced attrition and selection up or out. On the other hand, 2,426, or nearly five times as many, were opposed."

The report of the General Council revealed a bill containing elements of selection up, selection out and forced attrition, as described in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL last October at the time it was rendered.

Dissenting Opinions

Among members of the General Council who dissented from its report was Maj. Gen. J. E. Preston, The Inspector General, who stated, "It is believed a majority opinion of the officers of the Army is opposed to any change in the present system of promotion if such change includes any type of selection up or out or any type of forced attrition; but I do believe it favors a change such as is embodied in the bill known to them as the 'MacArthur Bill,' which offers them relief from the present stagnation in promotion."

Maj. Gen. Andrew Moses, assistant chief of staff, G-1, stated that he did not approve the distribution in grades, favoring more flexibility that would permit higher percentages in the upper grades. He also favored promotion of first lieutenants to captains in ten years. The form of selection out with no appeal, he said, gave the Class B men the advantage in that they do have an appeal. General Moses also forecast that opposition from civilian components would arise to the provision giving advanced war time rank in peace time. (This provision was included in the final bill and opposed by the National Guard Association.)

Major General Brown, the Judge Advocate General, said the bill would do more harm than good through forced elimination of many efficient officers and the annual period of fear accompanying the selection.

Maj. Gen. Frederick W. Coleman, Chief of Finance, also dissented in many important particulars, favoring flexible percentages in grades, and saying that the selection feature would be "a constant and serious morale-wrecking factor."

Major General Pillsbury, who was acting chief of engineers, said, "The principle of forced attrition will eventually separate from the active list officers of high technical and military qualifications. While a temporary application of this principle would be beneficial to the officers of the Army, legislation to perpetuate such attrition will, in my opinion, adversely affect the efficiency and morale of the military establishment."

Maj. Gen. B. D. Foulis, Chief of the Air Corps, favored the chief of the Army sitting as a member of the board when officers of his branch were considered. He also favored making lieutenant colonels eligible for selection as assistant chiefs.

Maj. Gen. George Simonds, now deputy chief of staff, suggested that the War Department be prepared with some compromise on forced attrition and the distribution in grades, adding that "The principle of a variable distribution in field grades and consequent decrease in forced attrition is contained in both the Interdepartmental report of 1930 and the MacArthur bill."

War Profits Bills

Conflict—between members and between Houses—characterized the Congress' activities this week in connection with the movement to take the profits out of war. The differences between the methods proposed by the Senate special Munitions Committee and the House Military Committee were the subject of considerable comment, while the House itself engaged for many hours in debating the provisions of its own committee's bill.

On April 1, the Senate committee, in accordance with the provisions of the resolution which gave it the last $50,000 of the $100,000 it has had to carry on its activities, submitted a short preliminary report, while members indicated that the investigation will go on and that another $50,000 will be sought. In this report the Senate Committee stated that it is "emphatically convinced that no bill which contains only general authorizations to the president to fix prices or to commandeer industry or to arrange for priorities and licensing is at all adequate." This, of course, is what the House bill was drafted to authorize.

Meanwhile Senator Nye is planning to push for Senate action on his bill which will provide, among other things, that no individual be permitted to earn more than the salary ($8,000) of a major general in the field; no corporation be allowed to retain more than three per cent of net profits; all citizens pay more income taxes and have smaller exemptions than "ever before," and officers of "essential" corporations be drafted into military service, subject to military rules, regulations, commands, orders and court-martial.

Marine Selection

Representative Maas, in extending, in the Record, his remarks regarding the bill to repeal section 16 of the Marine Corps Personnel Act, said: "We hope that the members of the board will take this into consideration and will not force out of the Marine Corps any majors or lieutenant colonels who have good records and who are valuable officers. It is the intention of Congress that the selection board shall, in effect, review its action, and we are hereby giving the Marine Corps another opportunity, to again consider these officers who were passed over with the hope and expectation that some of these officers will be picked up."

Reserve Division Bill

The House Military Affairs Committee this week voted to report out favorably the Reserve Division Bill, HR 6874, creating a reserve division in the War Department under a major general of the organized reserves.

Senate Passes Service Bills

The Senate on March 29 passed the bill, S. 2024, authorizing the appointment of Col. William L. Keller, MC, USA, noted Army surgeon, as consultant in surgery at the Army Medical Center upon his retirement. He would draw full pay and allowances and the appointment would be contingent upon his acceptance and terminable at his pleasure. Senator Sheppard read a report from the War Department endorsing the measure, and letters of praise for Colonel Keller from Secretary Dern and from Maj. Gen. E. M. Markham, Chief of Engineers.

A number of other service bills were passed by the Senate the same day, including S. 1210, authorizing certain naval officials to administer oaths; S. 1606, prohibiting unauthorized wearing, sale, etc., of Navy medals; S. 93, authorizing certain officers of the Navy and Marine Corps to administer oaths; S. 95, providing reduced railroad rates for officers and enlisted men of Army or Navy on leave or furlough.

Army Promotion Bill

The original promotion list, created over 14 years ago, pursuant to the mandate of Congress, has not been changed.

"The changes in the relative position now held by officers on the promotion list, in the event that H.R. 6675 is enacted into law, are indicated by the following illustrations: The junior officer appointed captain on July 1, 1920, is now number 6140 on the promotion list. He will go to number 2564 on the revised list, a gain of 3576 files. The senior officer appointed first lieutenant on July 1, 1920, is now number 1764. He will go to number 2626 on the revised list, a loss of 862 files. The junior officer appointed first lieutenant on July 1, 1920, is now under 6150. He will go to number 5265 on the revised list, a gain of 885 files. The senior officer appointed second lieutenant on July 1, 1920, is now number 1844. He will go to number 5267, a loss of 3423 files. Between these extremes practically every officer of the World War hump will gain or lose files to a greater or lesser extent. Special attention is invited to the attached list, which indicates the effect that the proposed legislation would have on the individual officers thereon.

"The principle underlying the creation of the promotion list is fundamentally sound and has been followed in the Army ever since its creation; i.e., seniority fixed by length of commissioned service. It was followed in the regiment up to 1890. It was applied in the arms and services from 1890 up to the World War. It has been the basis for determining seniority in the Army as a whole since the World War. When in 1920 officers were arranged in the field grades, below the grade of colonel, exactly the same rule was applied (with certain exceptions favoring emergency officers) as was followed in arranging captains and lieutenants; i.e., according to length of commissioned service without regard to the grades in which commissioned. Advantages gained by many officers by branch promotion prior to 1920 were lost, yet these officers are not opposed to the single list, but are wholeheartedly behind it. They believe that the principle upon which it is based is fair, and for the best interest of the Army.

"There is another phase of the matter which is believed to be vital. The National Defense Act was approved June 4, 1920. The method of placing captains and lieutenants on the promotion list was contained in that Act. The interpretation of the Act by the War Department was contained in the instructions to the Review Boards on July 14, 1920. Candidates appeared before the Personnel Boards up to the fall of 1920. Their commissions followed several months later and the initial promotion list was published in the spring of 1921. Hundreds of officers were content to be commissioned as lieutenants, knowing full well that they would be placed on the promotion list along with captains according to length of commissioned service without respect to the grade in which commissioned. This was their interpretation of the law. This was the War Department's interpretation. The correctness of the interpretation was attested to by the framers of the law. The interpretation was upheld by the court. There was an implied contract between the Government and these lieutenants; i.e., that their positions on the promotion list, once fixed according to the rule stated above, would not be disturbed. They accepted their commissions in view of these conditions, and revision of the list by Congress after 14 years have elapsed will be deemed by them violative of the sacred rights of contract. If officers commissioned in the grade of captain misinterpreted the law, it is regrettable, but certainly this fact should not militate against those officers who did understand the law and who placed their faith in the provisions of same which determined their positions on the promotion list. The law provided that officers were to be arranged on the promotion list according to length of service. Therefore, one who accepted a commission under those conditions has a vested right as against one who accepted a commission under the same conditions, but now desires a change in the law in order to advance his chances of promotion to the detriment of the other. The matter of changes in relative position on the promotion list has been submitted to practically every administration since 1920, and every administration has come to the conclusion that irrespective of the original justice and merit of individual claims, that time has so solidified the situation that it is impossible to eradicate injustices without doing greater injustice to others. Over 14 years have elapsed since the single promotion list was formed, and any reasonable statutes of limitation have far outrun the situation. Of course, Congress has the right to enact any law it sees fit, but Congress has consistently recognized equitable rights in its lawmaking power. Those who have been in the military service can fully appreciate the harmful situation in the Army which will result from the proposed wholesale reversal of rank.

"The War Department has recommended to Congress a bill (H.R. 5071) which is designed to provide promotion relief for the commissioned personnel as a whole. This War Department bill is designed to relieve the present deplorable promotion stagnation by accelerating the advancement of every officer below the grade of colonel, without resorting to any controversial issues the injection of which has defeated all previous attempts to provide promotion relief.

"For the foregoing reasons, the War Department is opposed to the enactment of H.R. 6675.

"Sincerely yours,

"Signed: Harry H. Woodring,

"(Acting) Secretary of War."

Air Corps Promotion

Brig. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, commander of the GHQ Air Force, testifying before the House Military Affairs Committee, April 4, urged enactment of the Army promotion bill and thereafter passage of additional legislation to give increased permanent rank for the Air Corps.

Creation of a Department of National Defense with three separate divisions of land, sea and air, was declared by the Air Force commander to be inevitable in the future. Provision for such a defense set-up at present, however, General Arnold opposed, stating that the Air Corps was "not yet able to stand on its own feet."

Asked by Chairman McSwain as to whether he would favor a separate promotion list for the Air Corps as a temporary move, prior to separation from the Army, General Arnold said that he had not studied the proposal but that he did have one firm conclusion as to Air Corps promotion.

"The present provision for giving the Air Corps the officers in the higher ranks that it needs by granting temporary advanced rank is entirely wrong," he stated. "It is having a bad effect on morale. From a limited study of the War Department promotion bill, I believe the Air Corps will continue to suffer from a lack of officers in the upper ranks and the only relief will be by temporary advanced rank."

"I believe that for the good of the whole Army the War Department promotion bill should be passed, and that then a bill should be passed giving the Air Corps increased regular rank, such officers advanced to be permanently promoted as extra numbers in grade."

This thriller of the skies was made to order for Beery, giving him one of the best and most lovable roles he has ever portrayed. Not only is the picture packed with thrills, but it boasts one of the most delightful romances on record as well as a touching father-and-son drama.

Navy Line Bill

said, was 2,079, including 625 under instruction. The total, as proposed, of 2,370 line officers on shore would include a total of 1,908 aviators. The pending bill would increase the line officers to 6,531, "which is all that is asked for at this time," he added, "as with the present source of supply—the Naval Academy—this number will not be reached till 1945. At that time, or before that time, an additional increase will be required of Congress in order adequately to provide for the Treaty Navy."

Admiral Leahy was questioned about the House amendment, allowing officers of the rank of lieutenant to serve as extra numbers until completing 21 years of commissioned service, instead of 14 as originally provided, or until reaching the age of 45 years. This change had his "entire approval." He said these officers "will be eligible for promotion until they have completed their service of 21 years or reached the age of 45 years." Senator Trammell added that, personally, he thought it was "very feasible to have it at 21 years instead of 14."

Admiral Leahy alluded to the provision for the private employment of retired officers. He thought "the Government would benefit by such employment, since the Navy knowledge and experience in design and in production would be valuable both to the civil industry and to the Government." He characterized the present law as "an inequitable statutory restriction." Army officers were not thus restricted. "At the present time practically every industry in America deals with the Government in one capacity or another and retired officers of the Navy are therefore unable to obtain legal employment in industry." He added that the House Naval Affairs Committee eliminated the provision to lift this restriction.

The Admiral, replying to a question, said the Navy Department approved the Line Personnel bill but had not yet been called upon to approve the clause retaining lieutenants for an additional 7 years. Personally, he favored it. Neither had the Bureau of the Budget approved the extra expense of $225,000 involved for the next 5 years.

Admiral Leahy, answering Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, said there was a sufficient number of enlisted men in the Navy, "as they are provided for ships of the Treaty Navy. This increase in the number of officers is very slow. It is not accomplished until 1945." Sooner or later there would have to be a corresponding increase in the number of enlisted men during the same period. Roughly 93,500 men at a cost of $9,350,000 would be required for the fiscal year of 1936.

Naval Aviation Cadets

Final enactment of the Navy Department's Aviation Cadet bill seems now near at hand. Having passed the House, the Senate Naval Affairs Committee at its Tuesday meeting conducted a hearing on it together with other pending measures. The House text was substituted for the Trammell bill and ordered favorably reported to the Senate without amendment.

The Navy Public Works bill, providing for a large construction program, also was ordered favorably reported Thursday to the Senate. The text, as adopted by the House, was substituted for the bill already offered by Senator Trammell. The Senate Committee approved it without amendment. From a parliamentary standpoint, this will facilitate enactment.

Rear Adm. Ernest J. King, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, explained to the Committee provisions of the bill for Aviation Cadets in the Naval Reserve and the Marine Corps Reserve. There is a present shortage of Naval aviators, he said, and this shortage will increase as the Navy is built to Treaty requirements. It had been found that out of every 100 Naval Academy Cadets 40 are not qualified for flying and of the 60 remaining 20 do not volunteer for flying, while of the forty that enter at Pensacola only 60 per cent, or 24, graduate. Aviation physical requirements, he explained, are higher than the general service requirements.

The Admiral explained in detail about airplane pilots being in a real sense the commanding officer of the plane, which fact exemplifies the need for judgment and association that is in the normal sphere of officers rather than enlisted men. Careful study had forced the conclusion that the number of Navy aviators must be supplemented with Reserve Naval aviators on active duty for periods of three years. These Reserve Naval aviators will be needed in the fiscal year 1937 and should get their flight training in the fiscal year 1936. He added that the pending measure would place these men during training at Pensacola on exactly the same status as are Army flying cadets. It would provide an excellent and adequate reserve of Naval aviators. During the year of training they would receive the same pay as Army cadets who are under training.

Replying to other questions Admiral King said he thought Army cadets should be paid a bonus of $1,500 on completing three years of enlisted service, just as it is proposed to pay the Navy cadets.

Would Build Naval Reserve

"A strong, virile Naval Reserve—like the Army Reserve Corps," is urged by Representative Vinson, of Georgia, Chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee. His advocacy of this at Thursday's Committee meeting was promptly endorsed by Representative John J. Delaney, of New York, and others of the Committee, with the result that a Sub-committee to study the subject and prepare a bill was immediately authorized and appointed, with Comdr. L. W. Hesselman, National President of the U. S. Naval Reserve Officers Association, promising to cooperate with them.

The matter came to a head during hearings on a bill to amend the Act of Feb. 28, 1925, for the "creation, organization, administration, and maintenance of a Naval Reserve and a Marine Corps Reserve." The general purpose of the bill is to liberalize the Act as to the training and payment of Reserves, so that they will be more nearly on a footing with Army Reserves. The Committee ordered a favorable report on this bill, after Capt. J. A. Schofield, USNR, representing the Navy Department; Comdr. L. R. Rutter, USNR, of New York, and Commander Hesselman had testified.

"The trouble with your proposition," Chairman Vinson remarked to Commander Hesselman, who made a good impression with the Committee, "is that you have no definite objective. You should aim toward recruiting a strong force with a thoroughgoing organization, that would appeal to young men on the seaboard centers and at interior points. This bill which we are reporting will not do much good. It is patchwork. My observation is that the Navy Department has a tendency to fall into ruts and to favor patching and amending of laws, where there should be new, outright legislation. I think there should be a thoroughgoing organization for Naval Reserves. While I haven't the necessary information for drawing such a bill, I would like to have one presented here for our consideration."

With this momentum, the Committee voted the Sub-committee and the Chairman nominated as its members Representatives Delaney, New York; Darden, of Virginia; Young, of Ohio; Darrow, of Pennsylvania; Burnham, of California; and Maas, of Minnesota.

Captain Schofield, at Committee request, made a statement about the 34 Reserve Officers on active duty and upon records of Reserve officers, serving time under sentences from civil authorities, as the first section of the proposed legislation gives the Secretary of the Navy authority to discharge them. The bill would provide for 48 pay drills, exactly the same as the Army, and would strike out certain discriminations as to pay. Commander Rutlin presented a statement about the strength of Naval reserves in five of the Treaty nations.

Visit Japan

Adm. F. B. Upham, commander-in-chief of the Asiatic Fleet, will make a good-will visit to Japanese ports during the maneuvers of the U. S. Fleet.

Admiral Upham will arrive in Yokohama with his flagship, the new ten thousand-ton cruiser, Augusta, for a two weeks' official visit May 3. This will be followed by a visit of the Flagship for one week to Kobe, Japan.

From May 4 to 17, eleven Destroyers of the Asiatic Fleet accompanied by their tender, USS Black Hawk, will visit Kobe, Japan.

Coast Guard News

The value of the Coast Guard to maritime interests of this country was strikingly illustrated this week, when the ice-breaking cutter Escanaba opened the Straits of Mackinac to traffic, three to four weeks earlier than usual.

Despite the rigorous winter which has ice-blocked the Great Lakes, the Escanaba on March 31, after several days of effort, succeeded in breaking a channel through the ice in the Straits, saving shippings interests and mill owners thousands of dollars. Already Coast Guard Headquarters has received several letters of thanks from companies who have benefited from the opening of traffic on the Lakes.

On April 2 and 3 there was held a private showing of the motion picture

"Story of the U. S. Coast Guard" at the Public Health Service Auditorium. High Treasury officials viewed the film, which will soon be shown at Coast Guard shore stations and aboard ships.

The Coast Guard came to the rescue of the Navy this week. The Navy submarine tender Cormorant went aground at Great Salt Pond, Block Island, R. I., and had to send for help. The 165-foot patrol boat, Argo, came over from Newport and pulled the Navy craft off bottom.

The keels of the four large cutters of new design, which are under construction at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, will be laid at ceremonies to be held at the Navy Yard on May 1, it was announced this week.

Admiral Hamlet expects to be present for the keel laying of the new cutters, which, when completed, will be the largest Coast Guard cutters in service. The names of the vessels are the George W. Campbell, the Samuel D. Ingham, the William J. Duane, and the Roger B. Taney, named for former Secretaries of the Treasury. Three other sister ships of the craft are under construction at other Navy Yards.

*Enacted, effective April 1.

†Partially achieved in Executive order of March 19, 1935.

THE DEBATE IN THE SENATE last week, precipitated by the able argument for the Sheppard bill made by the Senator from Texas, excerpts from which were published exclusively in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL of March 30, revealed a cleavage in that body as to the merits of the respective promotion systems in force in the Army and the Navy and Marine Corps. Mr. Sheppard promptly disposed of two misunderstandings under which his cross-examiners labored, one that the Army bill contemplated adoption of the Navy system of selection, and, two, that its enactment would force involuntary retirements. It was natural that some Senators, not familiar with the Army situation, should have been uninformed as to the cause of the "hump," and that they had assumed that the large number of promotions which had occurred since the 1922 Act obviated any chance of inequality or injustice. Senator Sheppard clearly explained the responsible causes for the conditions that his bill proposes to remedy. But what interested Senators particularly was that the rule of seniority below the grade of general officer was to continue under the Sheppard plan, a declaration which provoked favorable comment among them. The conclusion to be derived from the open debate and private discussion of Senators is that when the commissioned personnel increase bill for the Navy, passed by the House last week, comes up for discussion, efforts will be made to make the selection system at least less harsh in its effects upon officers of the sea service safeguarded as far as possible against injustice.

IN VIEW OF THE MILITARY and diplomatic maneuvers in which foreign governments are engaged, it is to be regretted that the House Military Committee has decided against reporting an authorization of the four hundred million dollar MacArthur program, which, as the Chief of Staff stated, would have provided an Army fully capable of discharging its defense mission. Due to the years of neglect experienced by the Land Service, its equipment is in great need of modernization mechanization and motorization. It is true that the enacted Army Appropriation bill contains liberal appropriations which will enable greater effectiveness with the larger Army and National Guard, but the several Arms still will be handicapped by lack of artillery, tanks, armored cars, reserve ammunition, etc. It was thought the MacArthur program could be financed from the work relief bill, but a provision has been incorporated in that measure which bans the use of any of its funds for the purchase of military equipment and supplies. However, those funds will be available for housing, technical construction and repairs for the ground and air forces, and in view of the unlikelihood of action upon the MacArthur recommendations, provision for them may be made by order of the President when the 4 billion dollar appropriation shall become available. General MacArthur has estimated that for Army quarters and barracks, storage and other facilities $80,100,000 will be required, for technical Air Corps construction $44,600,000, and for National Guard Camps $6,400,000. Other Army needs clearly can be met out of the work relief appropriation without violence to the prohibition against purchase of supplies. In view of the employment possibilities arising from Army work, the President should not hesitate to approve the requests the War Department will make of him. The same reason, as well as the question of greater efficiency, should guide him in the applications the Navy will submit for the improvement of its shore stations both at home and in our possessions.

THAT THE QUESTION OF battleship replacement is concerning not only the Navy Department but Congress is shown by a forceful article in behalf of this type of warcraft published by the Hearst press from the pen of Senator Gerry, of Rhode Island. Mr. Gerry, while aware of the value of the submarine and the airplane as adjuncts to the Fleet, holds they are simply additional weapons to be used with the battleship. With Admiral Standley, Chief of Naval Operations, he regards a second class Navy as the late Admiral Moffett once colloquially stated, merely a second best hand in a poker game. Therefore, Senator Gerry contends that the United States must possess not a defensive Navy but a superior Navy and that it must be built with the battleship as its backbone. The matter becomes one of imminent moment, since the Washington and London Treaties will expire on January 1 next, and freed from their limitations world naval thought is turning to the question of battleship replacement or addition. The President will be asked early in the approaching summer whether or not the Navy Department should include proposals for battleships in its estimates for the next fiscal year. As Italy and France are building or have authorized vessels of this type, and as Great Britain must do likewise to retain her preponderance. Mr. Roosevelt should not fail to give approval to the recommendation in this matter which the General Board is expected to submit.

Service Humor

Ambition

"Are you content to spend your life walking around the country begging?" asked the soldier of the tramp.
"No, sir," came the answer, "many's the time I've wished for a car."

Enunciation

First Cockney—"Hi say, 'Arry, 'ave you got any lices?"
Second Cockney—"Ead lices."
First Cockney—"No, shoe lices."
Bamboo Breezes.

Make an Imitation

Officer—"Now tell me, what is your idea of strategy?"
Private—"It is when you're out of ammunition, but keep right on firing."

Limits

The sergeant was getting the rookie started on his duties. Pointing down the road he said, "Do you see that red light in the distance? Well, that is the limit of your patrol, get going."
A week later the rookie showed up at headquarters much the worse for wear. "You remember that red light?" he asked the sergeant.
"Yes."
"Well," replied the rookie. "That was a moving van bound for Chicago."

Another

Sergeant (to sentry)—"If anything moves, you shoot."
Sentry—"Yes, suh; an' if anything shoots, ah moves."

Long Time

The baker prided himself on his cooking. He was amazed to hear a young rookie criticize a pie one day.
"Pie, young fellow: Why, I made pies before you were born."
"Well, why serve 'em now?"

Changing Times

Old Timer—"Blow my tarry tope's I've lost my bearings, and I'm looking for a snug berth where I can reef my canvas and lay to until I hoist anchor in the morning."
Modern Sailor (college model)—"I presume you are looking for temporary accommodations. Permit me to suggest that you try the hotel across the street, where I am sure you will find the cuisine and other appointments entirely satisfactory."

—Exchange.

Sick Call

"Do you call that a fit?" asked the tough sergeant of the nervous recruit, appearing for inspection the first time in a uniform.
"N-n-n-o, sir," said the rookie shaking in his shoes. "N-n-never had a f-f-f-it in my life."

ASK THE JOURNAL

SEND your queries to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL QUESTION EDITOR and an answer will be given in this column as soon as possible after receipt.

W. O. P.—The Veterans' Administration informs us that desertion from the Army in March, 1902, while the Philippine Insurrection was still going on, would prevent the man in question from receiving a pension, the earlier honorably concluded enlistment notwithstanding.

G. S.—The George Banta Publishing Company, Menasha, Wis., publishes an Officer's Manual by Col. James A. Moss. This manual contains a chapter on Military Correspondence. We have no information regarding a book called "Military Correspondence" by a Colonel Morris.

A. P. P.—The Adjutant General's office informs us that the transport Sheridan arrived in the Philippines on August 31, 1908 and also on December 2, 1908. They also state that the 30th Infantry left Manila for the United States on July 15, 1909. Foreign Service for double time purposes counts from the day of arrival in the Philippines until the day of departure.

M. D.—The Adjutant General's office informs us that while there is no chance for you to be assigned to Foreign Service in Panama before May, there is a good chance of your receiving such an assignment sometime this summer.

Completion and delivery of the 12-inch hooped and tubed gun, on the French System, at the South Boston Iron Works has been somewhat delayed. The gun had been finished sufficiently for putting on the steel hoops when it was discovered that the casting for the former was cooled too rapidly, producing so much initial tension as to cause cracks at the muzzle.

1935 Buick Series 40 Two-Door Touring Sedan with built-in trunk. 8-cylinder valve-in-head engine. $865, list price at Flint.

LIKE LIGHTNING ON A LIMB !

To the person of discernment and enthusiasm who spoke this picturesque headline for the 1935 Buick—our thanks. He had just finished his own demonstration of the newest Buick. The words popped explosively out of his mouth. He knows automobiles, for he's been driving them almost since there were any. He's still young enough and peppy enough to want to "step on it" when there's the chance. Buick's 10-to-60-mile, 21-second pick-up—its 85-mile top—got him. Its sound and stable roadability, its feeling of utter security and its safety brakes are precisely what he wants along with its marvelous performance. Never has he had anything even approaching Buick's Knee-Action gliding ride. He expects to get the gas economy of 15 to 18 miles per gallon which owners are consistently reporting. For he bought one of these Buicks, of course. It's a rare thing for a man or woman to take a demonstration of the newest Buick and successfully resist the buying urge. Try one yourself—and see.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Navy Rotation Plan Scrapped—The Navy's ship rotation plan, installed in the days of curtailed naval budgets but then intended as a permanent policy to keep down the operating cost of a treaty Navy, has been tossed into the discard.

On July 1 next, the Navy Department will abolish the Rotating Reserve Destroyer Squadrons and vessels now laid up in reserve will join the Fleet for regular operations. This action will terminate the policy installed by Admiral William V. Pratt several years ago, as the submarines and tugs, which formerly alternated in rotating reserve, have already been placed on a full operating basis.

Admiral Pratt, as Chief of Naval Operations during the past Administration when pressure was constantly being brought to bear from above to curtail naval expenditures, devised the rotation plan as a means of continuing operation of ships in commission with reduced crews and funds for fuel. Instead of decommissioning ships, the plan involved their continued operation for nine or ten months of the year, with two or three months spent at anchor or in navy yards under skeletoned crews, each division of ships "rotating" in this period of reserve.

The plan was put into effect as to destroyers, submarines and tugs, and at one time a cut in appropriations made it appear that it would be necessary to "rotate" the cruiser divisions. The plan, moreover, was advanced by Admiral Pratt as a means of maintaining a treaty strength Navy without making large increases in annual upkeep charges. Opponents of building up the Navy emphasized the fact that a larger Navy would mean larger annual appropriation bills, and Admiral Pratt proposed that by "rotating" all types of ships from battleships down, a treaty fleet could be kept in readiness for war without undue additional cost.

Other naval officers, however, disagreed with the then Chief of Operations, holding that the ships in rotating reserve were not ready to put to sea with the fleet and that the savings from the plan were negligible. Some of them expressed their views publicly. A year ago, the plan was dropped as to submarines, and during the current year the tugs were placed in full operation. There still remained, Rotating Reserve Destroyer Squadrons 19 and 20, numbering some four or five divisions of destroyers.

With the end of the present fiscal year, however, all destroyers in commission will operate all of the year. Moreover, naval officials declare that it is the intention when the Navy reaches full treaty strength to keep all vessels in commission in continuous operation, and unless forced to decommission ships because of reduction of appropriations, to keep the treaty Navy in commission, ready to go into action.

Increased Pay With Temporary Rank—Officers of the Air Corps who are temporarily advanced in rank are entitled to the pay of the temporary rank only from the date of the assignment to the duty which calls for higher rank and such date can not be retroactive, the Judge Advocate General of the Army has ruled.

The Judge Advocate General, in an opinion dated March 8, 1935, held: " * * * that an officer assigned to duty with temporary increased rank under the provisions of the Act of 1926 referred to (Sec. 3, Act July 2, 1926 (44 Stat. 782; U. S. C. 10:292a)) is entitled to the pay and allowances appropriate to such temporary rank from and including the effective date of his assignment to such duty as specified in the War Department order by which such assignment is made, provided the officer concerned receives notice of that assignment on or before its effective date."

Marine Corps Bill—The amendment placed on HR4016, on the floor of the House last week, will receive the endorsement of Marine Corps officials, when the bill is taken up by the Senate Naval Affairs Committee.

Under the terms of the bill as sent to Congress by the Navy Department and as reported by the House Naval Committee, HR 4016 would simply repeal Section 16 of the Marine Corps personnel law and effect the retirement of not more than ten majors and six lieutenant colonels each year. It would also give to officers promoted under the new selection system the pay of their rank, now withheld. An amendment offered and approved on the floor of the House when the bill was passed, would prevent any forced retirements of field officers until June 30, 1936, thus giving the 16 officers who would retire this June 30 if the bill passes without the amendment another chance at being selected.

It was stated this week by Marine Corps officials that the amendment was acceptable, and the Senate Naval Affairs Committee would be so informed when a hearing is held on the bill, probably next week.

Staff Corps Selections—Appointment of a Medical Corps selection board to recommend for advancement to the rank of Commander, 89 medical lieutenant commanders, was announced this week.

Rear Adm. John B. Dennis, MC, USN, is president of the board, which will meet at the Navy Department, April 9. The other members are: Capt. Ulys R. Webb, Capt. Richard A. Warner, Capt. Edgar L. Woods, Capt. Harry A. Garrison, Capt. Elmer E. Curtis and Capt. Dallas G. Sutton, all medical officers. Comdr. Louis H. Roddis, MC, USN, will act as recorder. Lieutenant commanders down through Signal No. 6794 are eligible for selection.

The report of the Dental Corps selection board awaits the return to Washington of President Roosevelt. The board reported a week ago, but it will not be approved and made public until then. Approval of the selections of the Construction Corps board which convened March 25, will also await the President's return.

Naval Aviation Cadets—Prompt action by the Senate is likely on the bill, HR 5577, to provide Aviation Cadets for the Navy. The bill already has been passed by the House and this week the Senate Naval Committee ordered it favorably reported.

Congressman Delaney introduced the bill to provide for Aviation Cadets in the Naval Reserve. As drawn, this will create the grade of Aviation Cadet in the Naval Reserve and Marine Corps Reserve. It provides that such Cadets shall be appointed under an agreement to serve four years on active duty, including a period of training to qualify them as aviators, and subject to earlier discharge at the option of the Navy Department. The pay provided for the Aviation Cadets in the bill is $75 per month while training, and $125 per month during the remainder of their active duty period. These rates include extra pay for flying risk. In addition, they would be allowed $1 per day for subsistence and, while training, will also be allowed necessary issue of uniforms at government expense. Upon completion of training and assignment to other duty, they are to be paid a uniform allowance of $150. The bill also provides government life insurance of $10,000 during the four-year enrollment without expense to the Aviation Cadet. Upon conclusion of the four-year period of enrollment, Aviation Cadets would be paid a lump sum of $1500 additional and would be eligible for a commission in the Naval Reserve or in the Marine Corps Reserve, with date of precedence as of date of appointment as Aviation Cadet. While holding the grade of Aviation Cadet their precedence would be next before Warrant Officers.

Army Promotion List Revision

Accompanying its unfavorable report on the McSwain bill to revise the Army Promotion List, the War Department this week sent to the House Military Affairs Committee the following experimental promotion list with the officers of the "hump" arranged in the order they would be under Mr. McSwain's bill. In the following list, the officers present promotion list number (Army List and Directory of October 20, 1934) is placed immediately after his name and next the number he would have under the McSwain bill.

Experimental Promotion List. Section composed of officers appointed Regular Army, April 6, 1917, to July 1, 1920. Arranged in accordance with provisions of H.R. 6675. Based on Promotion List of October 20, 1934.

NOTES

1. Officers are credited with same service as now credited on promotion list except:

(a) Former reserve officers, not credited with service at training camp, are now credited from date of active duty.

(b) Former regular officers re-appointed July 1, 1920 are placed in proper group in accordance with grade in which re-appointed.

(c) Nine provisional officers of October 16, 1917, who were captains on June 30, 1920, are placed in the second group.

2. Officers whose positions were changed prior to January 1, 1928 by special enactment of Congress or sentence of courts-martial have been placed in accordance with the bill.

Group 1—Captains on June 30, 1920, or appointed Captains on July 1, 1920.

Reserves on CCC Duty

Authority has been granted by the War Department for Corps Area Commanders to employ Reserve officers of the rank of lieutenant colonel and major on Civilian Conservation Corps duty.

Funds are carried in the pending Work Relief Bill for continuation of the CCC and for increasing the number of enrollees to 600,000. The employment on active duty of about 4,000 additional Reserve officers will be required to handle these additional men, it is said, making the total number of Reserve officers employed approximately 10,000. Heretofore, the assignment to this duty has been confined almost without exception to company officers, but it will be possible now to order field officers to active duty.

Under the plans which are awaiting passage of the Relief Bill, the number of CCC camps will be increased from 1,640 to 2,916. The policy of apportioning Reserve line officers to the camps in the ratio of 2½ to each camp will continue, as will the employment of three doctors per thousand enrollees and one chaplain for each eight camps. As in the past, the doctors and chaplains will include contract surgeons and clergymen as well as Reserve officers.

While Corps Area Commanders will have the authority to employ field officers on the CCC duty, it is not expected that any great number will be ordered to active duty. They can only be used in assignments proper for their rank, i.e., at district headquarters and inspection duty. They will not be assigned to companies. Medical officers of the ranks of first lieutenant and captain will continue to be used.

Regular Army officers on duty with the CCC will be withdrawn to the extent that they can be spared, but it was said that it is not expected that many of the 373 officers now assigned this work will be relieved. The 298 Regular Army enlisted men who were on duty with the CCC on March 1 were to all have been relieved by April 1, 1935. The 62 Naval medical officers now on duty at camps are being relieved as needed by the Navy.
